FINALLY

Hot summer's days on the beach are all well and good, but the sheer crisp beauty of a frosty, sunny, winter's morning on the tennis court is hard to beat. Filling in for some injured party this morning was a real treat, although having the sun at eye level right behind the server's arm made the proceedings interesting. There were many calls of "MINE!", followed by the unmistakable swish of a tennis racquet hitting fresh air, as the poor blinded sod trying to make the shot burned off their reputation and retinas in one fell swoop. The lob from the shady side was the shot du jour as the more sadistic of the players let their evil side shine through. Partner Roger was not so jolly on one occasion when, at the net, I left a high ball for him, thinking it was going to the back of the court. The fact that it nearly dropped right on top of my head was a measure of the sun's influence, not, as Roger mumbled, anything to do with my limited ability to play a basic tennis shot!

Michelle Cornish's format of a doubles, mixed doubles, reverse mixed doubles with a triple axel and a twist of lemming is great fun and anyone that is able should sign up for the next competition, due to start in three weeks' time (Friday mornings).

There is still time to book a spot at the court-side table at Hawera, so drop me a line if you want to come: tabwright@ihug.co.nz or 343 1011.

And now for some more cringeworthy Tommy Cooperisms:

1. My friend drowned in a bowl of muesli. A strong currant pulled him in.
2. A man came round in hospital after a serious accident. He shouted, "Doctor, doctor, I can't feel my legs!" The doctor replied, "I know you can't, I've cut your arms off".
3. I went to a seafood disco last week...and pulled a muscle.
4. Two Eskimos sitting in a kayak were chilly. They lit a fire in the craft, it sank, proving once and for all that you can't have your kayak and heat it.
5. Our ice cream man was found lying on the floor of his van covered with hundreds and thousands. Police say that he topped himself.

Enjoy your tennis.
